

I want to write to you today to tell you that I oppose any constraints on the ability of satellite radio stations (such as XM Radio or SIRIUS) to provide services comparable to those of "over the air" stations (such as AM, FM, or shortwave).

I very much enjoy my XM Radio service. I listen to music from the 40s, "old time" radio, and enjoy the ability to quickly tune in weather and traffic in the Boston area. It has added to the quality of my life while I commute to/from work and clients, and would be both disappointed and angered by any attempt to place constraints on what is such a useful and enjoyable service.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you would like more information.

Respectfully submitted,

Dr Brian F Shea
